Coalers Won in Walk in Slow Game at Park
Yesterday.

POOR SUPPORT FOR TIMMS.

It would have been disheartening to the Best Twirler in the Business. Fairmont Opponent of Malarkeyites Again Today.

"Our Boys" went out to the Marletta & Stillwagon Park Monday afternoon, looked wise, let Fairmont walk away with a dull and uninteresting game, and then walked back to town. The contest was a farce. Half the home boys must have immersed their fingers in good soft butter before going out to play the game, for the ball managed to slip away from them most of the time. The principal offender was Birmingham. Everyone knows that Birney can play third base, but he stood around the sack yesterday something like a clothing store dummy. On ordinary days this wouldn't have mattered much, but it so happened that the Fairmont batters sent their line drives toward third base. About nine times in ten they went safe. Added to this, Parsons was away off. He played horse with a couple of easy grounders and let scores in. Wagner, the new man in middle garden, permitted a comparatively easy grounder to go through his legs and the batter made the circuit.

It was a regular slaughter of the innocents. Harry Timms did the twirling. His benders looked good to Fairmont. Timms pitched a better game than the score would indicate. As he got no support, he let down after a bit and Fairmont had everything its way.

With the score 7 to 2 in favor of the visitors in the seventh, Catcher Coke Connors got a finger hurt. Then there was something doing. The locals for about five minutes showed the crowd that they might have been able to play base ball once upon a time. Singles by Francis Timms and Wagner, a double by Love and Birmingham's three-bagger, netted five runs and tied the score. Fond hopes ran high, but were dashed to earth in the ninth when Fairmont got three runs without half trying. McFarlan flied to Parsons but Gates singled. Haught sent a liner to Tiffany and was tipped at first. Murphy flied a nice one to the outfield for a sack, scoring Gates. Murphy advanced a base on a wild pitch. Connors singled. Carlisle then singled to left, scoring Murphy. Parsons' throw to the home plate was bad and Connors also tallied. Following is the score:

Connellsville AB R H P A E
Birmingham 3 7 5 1 1 1
Wagner 3 0 2 0 1 1
Timms 1 0 0 10 1 0

Notes of the Game.
Umpire Denny Wolfe may be a little off at times, but he runs the game with little or no kicking, and that is appreciated by every base ball fan. The crowd don't want any of the best of it in Connellsville. Give the visitors a square deal. Any umpire, the best of them, will make an occasional error of judgment. Wolfe makes as few as any umpire in minor league company in this part of the country. President Power has a good man in Wolfe and has made him chief of his staff.

Reddy Mack has his boys working in nice style. Fairmont deserves a winning combination. Lovers of clean sport in the big West Virginia town backed the team from the start with a hearty will and their financial support. Mack has proven the right man to handle their team.

Come on, boys, get together and win a few. We are still with you, but please, oh, please, brace up a little. Wow! And think, we were the last team to lose a game.

Tiffany's playing was the one bright feature of the game. The big kid didn't do anything with the bat but was all there in the field.

Captain Parsons was off color. He didn't get a hit and as for fielding; well, the grounders that came his way usually kept going. On fly balls, however, Romeo was there with the goods.

Love flied like a bush leaguer yesterday. He was there with the bat though.

Hable." The big fellow never seems to know what an off day looks like. Timms hit the ball to good advantage. He got two pretty singles.

Danny Hart played a pretty fielding game. He had seven chances and handled all of 'em. What he did in the batting line, however, couldn't be seen with a microscope.

Francis was the only outfielder who did his duty. Chip took everything that came his way, one fly ball, and plucked out two nice hits.

The hitting order was changed considerably. So was the team's luck.

Two more chances at the prospective Champs.

Fairmont has one weak spot. That is behind the bat. Let anything happen to Connors and the team flies to pieces.

Umpire Denny Wolfe was off on balls and strikes at times. Connellsville didn't get the worst of the decisions, though.

Reddy Mack had a kick. In the eighth he jammed one down the third base line that Wolfe called foul. Reddy didn't know it until he landed on second and two men had scored. What he said wouldn't look nice in print.

McFarlan is one of the best Fairmont has. The big fellow is in the game all the time and plays it well, too.

Carlisle had Connellsville at his mercy until the seventh inning. Up to that time he only allowed three hits.

Gates got four hits. They were nice ones, too.

Haught, who jammed the ball all over the lot here a few weeks ago, only got one hit. Being a left-hander, Timms had him at his mercy.

SMITHFIELD.

Chatty Letter From the Metropolis of Georgian Township.

SMITHFIELD, June 2.—Everything was pretty much Republican at Tuesday's primaries. There were 108 votes polled in the borough, 93 Republican, 13 Democratic and three Prohibition. The Prohibitionists had no opposing candidates for the offices to be voted for on their ticket and the Democrats practically none, so they evidently thought it was not worth while to brave the stormy elements that prevailed that day to go to the polls and cast their ballots. An unusual number of voters were challenged, several on account of their names being omitted from the voters' registry lists. A few were challenged as to their former political affiliation. Some of these qualified as required by the new law that they had voted for a majority of the candidates on the party ticket they asked for at the last general election. Others would not be sworn to this and would either ask for the ticket of the party to which they belonged or leave the voting room. A few did the latter and did not vote at all. Everything passed off quietly, with no wrangling and jars in or about the polling place. There was an active but good natured rivalry among the workers and friends of the different candidates to get the voters to the polls, and when the votes were counted the friends of the defeated candidates cheerfully accepted the result, and will give the successful candidates, whoever they may be, hearty support next fall.

One of the worst mountain storms of years prevailed here all day and night Saturday, blowing down trees in the borough and cutting telephone wires out of commission, so that the result of the nominations could not be communicated to the different papers at Uniontown and Conneltsville that had asked for them from their correspondents the day before.

They ran out of tickets in Georges No. 4 and had to send for a new supply. These came to Fairbairn on the trolley and were conveyed here on horseback.

ROCKWOOD.

Bright Paragraphs From the Big Somerset County Borough.

ROCKWOOD, June 4.—Rockwood was not far behind the larger cities on the route of President Roosevelt. On Saturday when No. 6 came in a crowd of almost 200 people had braved the inclement weather and were on hand to greet the President. As soon as the train came to a stop "Teddy" appeared on the rear platform of the last car, and with hand held, stood in the rain for fully five minutes and shook hands with the crowd, after which he made a short address. The crowd cheered him vigorously as the train pulled out.

Younklin was injured about the head by flying timbers, while Weimer had his foot caught under the car, and it was badly mangled. Younklin will be able to return to work in a day or two, but Weimer will likely be off for some time.

Dr. and Mrs. David S. Snyder of Pittsburgh arrived in town and will spend several days visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hentz, at the Hentz Hotel.

The Syracuse Easy Washing Machine

Is the perfected result of 34 years' experience in the manufacture of washing devices. It utilizes Air Force in washing. The clothes are washed by forcing soap suds through them by compressed air. You force soap suds through clothes to clean them by the old hand method, but you needlessly wear away the fabric by rubbing it on the metal surface of a washboard.

THE KNOX BOOM; WHY IT GROWS.

The Knox boom gathers strength as it goes. The derision with which the suggestion of his name was greeted by some thoughtless newspapers of his own State has changed to enthusiastic support, now that it is apparent that the State Convention will endorse him and that the Republicans of other States look upon his candidacy with kindly eyes.
Senator Knox is recognized as one of the great statesmen of the nation.
He is not big of body like Secretary
Taft, but in mentality he towers above his fellows. We violate no confidence, nor do we cast any reflections upon our worthy President, when we say that Attorney General Knox made some of the most popular and important of the Roosevelt policies possible by his brilliant planning and his able execution; and it is admitted that the President-down to the humblest man of affairs that the interests of the nation and the party could not be committed to abler hands.
It is also evident that Senator Knox
would not be a mere follower, a faithful copyist, a clever imitator. He has all the elements of leadership and the commanding ability to deal successfully with any situation however delicate or complicated. He would not be President Roosevelt's man, but a reincarnation of his plans and policy.
He would not be a subaltern, but a commander. He would not be a political heir, but a President in every sense of the term.
During the period from 1876 to 1900,
the great political parties of the nation were pretty evenly divided, and in playing the game of politics the leaders recognized the good policy if not the actual necessity of choosing their Presidential nominees from pivotal States. In consequence, New York and Ohio furnished all the Presidents save one who hailed from Indiana. With the election of McKinley in 1896 and the beginning of that remarkable era of prosperity which Republican policies have fostered and preserved, the Republican party has grown in strength and its opposition
has dwindled into almost insignificance.
It has not been necessary since 1900 to limit the nomination of a Republican candidate for President to New York or Ohio, or to any other
"pivot" State; and in the coming campaign it is questionable policy to nominate a candidate from either of these President-making Commonwealths. Factional strife which may mean actual defeat is invited by the selection of a candidate in either State. The Columbus correspondent of the Independent Pittsburg Dispatch

assorts:
That neither Foraker or Taft can carry Ohio if nominated for the Presidency is the sentiment of the wise politicians in Columbus. Presumably every politician big and little, in the State believes it, but many of them are keeping still.
The two men who are most popular,
outside the Ohio candidates and, the President are Fairbanks and Knox.
The west side of the State likes and adores Fairbanks. The eastern side of the State and many of those about the State Capitol think especially well of Pennsylvania's candidate. These men say that there is nothing against Knox; that Roosevelt himself must concede him strength and the very attributes which he demands must be possessed by the man who is to be his successor. Not even Taft so nearly represents the ideals of Roosevelt, according to the views of many Ohioans, as does the Pennsylvania man. As a consequence, there is a growing feeling that when the break comes Knox will enjoy part of the Ohio vote.
Labor unions are hostile to Taft, according to the opponents of the war
secretary, who declare that organized labor would fight Taft both before and after the nomination. The 40,000 colored voters of the State, it is also claimed, would bolt if he is endorsed for the Presidency, and it is declared they will slaughter the city tickets this fall if the Taft for Taft is not stopped.
The temperance people are urging the election against Knox and Taft and the protectionists are attacking him as well as Congressman Burton on the charge that they are free traders. How then can he carry the State if nominated? say those politicians and officials who are more concerned about the State ticket than they are about the national one.
West Virginia also looks upon Knox with favor, and some of her leading Republicans are outspoken in his support.
The President has expressed his approval of him. He is sane and safe, sound and sensible; a patriot, not a politician; a democrat, but not a demagogue; a foe neither to labor nor to industry; a sun-crowned statesman who lives above the fog of faction and political prejudices in public duty and in private thinking.
The State of Pennsylvania will honor herself in presenting his name to the Republican National Convention. The Republican party will strengthen its cause by nominating him for President and the people of the United States will safeguard their prosperity by electing him as their Chief Magistrate.

Wit and Humor of JOE BLACKBURN.

THOUGH the fighting and silver tongue
senator from Kentucky was defeated
for re-election, people of the Blue Grass State as well
as those of Washington will long remember his quarter of a century's service in the two houses of congress, his stock of good stories and his bright repartee.
As a sample of the stinging language Blackburn sometimes uses may be seen his characterization of a western judge whom he had introduced to President Cleveland late in the campaign of 1888. After this judge returned home he gave out an interview in which he professed to quote the president as having given up the election because of the treachery of Senator Hill of New York, Mayor Hewitt and others. Blackburn characterized the whole statement as false and wound up his sizzling roast in this fashion:
"I can do no more than to crave the president's pardon for having been induced to introduce to him a caricature upon humanity, for whose existence the Lord in fair dealing owes an apology to mankind."
Here is another sample of the sort of English Blackburn slings when he is feeling well. He was detected reading the president's message, and as he read he chuckled to himself. Finally one of his colleagues approached the senator from Kentucky and asked for the joke.
"It has just occurred to me," solemnly
observed the senator, "that Mr.
Roosevelt's English does not comports with the pyrotechnic scintillations of obscurest linguistics which so extensively illuminated the lucubrations
and intonations of President Cleveland."
Since he hails from Kentucky many of the tales concerning Blackburn naturally relate to the beverage which cheers. Here is one: A friend recently met the ex-senator at the station on his return from a trip to the country.
"How are you, Joe?" his friend asked.
"I'm up against it," was the reply.
"I lost the best part of my baggage en route."
"Did you misplace it, or was it stolen?" his friend inquired solicitously.
"Neither," said Blackburn. "The cork came out."
When questioned about this story
later, however, Blackburn denied it.
"Not a word of truth in it," he said.
"You know I would be more careful of the cork."

THE REFORM WAVE HITS ANOTHER QUARTER
There is a movement on foot among some of the women's organizations to drive the smoking and drinking characters from the pages of the modern novels—News Item.

that," returned Blackburn. "It's not the quality I'm objecting to, but the quantity. The crowd is too big for an anecdote and not big enough for a speech."

One day Secretary of War Taft appeared before the military committee of the senate, of which Blackburn was a member, advocating the view that junior army officers should not marry.
"But how," asked Blackburn "can you make that accord with the administration views on race suicide?"
Secretary Taft met this question with a characteristic roar of laughter.

Blackburn was a dandy silver man and therefore opposed to the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law. Representing Kentucky and a party of other Kentuckians called on the senator and told him he was hurtling himself politically as most of the towns in the state were passing resolutions favoring the repeal.

"What do I care for the resolutions of the towns?" retorted Blackburn. "They are passed by bankers, lawyers and dry goods merchants, and no country men were at the meetings."
"How do you know?" asked Curuth.
"How do I know?" Why, Asher, I know it darned well. Every town in Kentucky is reached by a tollgate, and the poor country people haven't money enough to pass them. That's the reason I know. Here Jim, give these fellows a drink of Bourbon and let them go."

Blackburn one day invited Secretary
Shaw and Vice President Fairbanks, who was then senator, to have some thing. When Shaw was asked what he would take, he replied:
"Well, I guess I'll have a glass of lemonade."

Blackburn then turned to Fairbanks
and said:
"And what will you have, senator?"
"I'll have a glass of molasses," was the reply.
The bartender said to Senator Blackburn:
"And what's your senator?"
"Oh," said he, "secretly able to conceal his disgust. I guess I'll have a piece of squash pie."

Stanley Francis Must Serve Five
Years for Lying Mails to Defraud.
Philadelphia, June 1.—Stanley Francis the promoter of the Storey Cotton company, of this city, which was closed by the postal authorities and which had been indicted in all sections of the country, began a sentence of five years in the Eastern penitentiary. Francis was convicted of using the mails to defraud. His Francis, wife of the promoter, made the last appeal to the United States district attorney for a few days' grace for her husband, but the appeal was refused, as was the appeal to United States Judge Holland by counsel representing Francis. In her appeal to the district attorney, Mrs. Francis said: "I only want a few days more, just enough to give us a chance to straighten out our business matters. The district attorney refused to yield, however, and Francis' attorneys after a vain appeal to the court gave up the long fight."

SCOTSDALE CLASS.

Nineteen Took Part in 19th Annual Commencement Monday Night.

A LARGE AUDIENCE PRESENT.

Middle Year Class Was Entertained by Seniors—Town Council Adjourned Until Later Date—Other Notes of the Busy Mill Town.

SCOTSDALE, June 4.—An immense audience gathered at the Guyer Opera House on Monday evening to listen to the nineteenth annual commencement of the Scottdale High School. There were nineteen graduates, and each having a part in the program, it was a lengthy one. The stage was decorated with purple and white, the class colors, and with potted plants and flowers, and bore a very handsome appearance. The graduates wore caps and gowns, and these were thrown apart by the girls so that their graduation gowns were very much in evidence. The members of the Board of Education and the High School teaching staff occupied places on the stage, while forming a background were the members of the High School who sang the choruses of the evening. The orchestra also took a part in the program. In the debate, "Resolved, That Immigration from Southern Europe Should Be Prohibited," the negative was declared the winner. The entire program, with the part that each graduate took, was as follows:

Overture, "Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna," F. W. Suppe; orchestra; invocation, Rev. W. Williamson, pastor of the U. B. church; essay, "What Brings Out the Stars," Dora Cullor; oration, "Shall We Give Tips?" John Van Horn; essay, "Child Labor Detrimental to the General Welfare," Edna Breegle; essay, "Our Study of Milton," Jessie McLaughlin; oration, "John Paul Jones, Founder of the American Navy," Edgar Lowe; chorus, "Fairy Land Waltz," Vezzie; High School; essay, "Christian Missions, a World Power," Anna Long; essay, "Woman's Progress in the Twentieth Century," Margaret Muir; oration, "The Tramp, a Social Parasite," Carlisle Hasnest; essay, "A Plea for a Public Park," Clara Collins; essay, "American History," Mae King; chorus, "Soldiers' Chorus," from Gounod's Faust; High School; oration, "The Chinese in America," William Muir; debate, "Resolved, That Immigration from Southern Europe Should Be Prohibited," Affirmative, Fred Frantz, William H. H. man; negative, Jessie Dinger, John Webb; chorus, "Hunting Song," G. H. Christ; High School; essay, "Music Among the Ancients," Margaret Shannon; essay, "The City Beautiful," Margaret Lee; oration, "The Manufacture of Coke," Harold Skemp; essay, "Application of the Various Principles of Science," William Webb; decision of judges on the debate; presentation of diplomas, Robert Skemp, President Board of Education; march, "Free Lance," Sousa, orchestra.

The Middle Year class of the Scottdale High School were handsomely entertained upon their near approach at that time to the rank of Seniors. The party was a charming one and was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Colborn, on Leukus avenue, by their daughter, Miss Bess. The house was beautifully decorated with purple and white, the class colors, and in serving the lunch each plate was accompanied by a bouquet of purple and white violets. Besides the members of the Senior and Middle Year classes, the High School faculty were also present. There were two jolly contests, in which John Van Horn and Edgar Lowe won prizes.

The Town Council met on Monday evening. Commencement coming on that night and several of the members having relatives and close friends on the list of graduates, and there only being a quorum present half an hour after the regular meeting time the body adjourned to meet promptly at 8 o'clock on Friday evening. This is the first time for the present Council to so adjourn since the town was divided into wards, and a quorum being made up of seven members. The School Board also had a meeting and adjourned.

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Strickler are spending the week at Atlantic City and Philadelphia. Dr. Strickler attended the meeting of the American Medical Society, of which he is a member.

Dr. O. O. Engle and daughters and son and Miss Mabel Shotts left on Monday for the Jamestown Exposition and several eastern points.

Mrs. M. B. Gault of Tyrone Church spent Monday evening in town attending Commencement.

Mr. and Mrs. William Muir and Miss Christian Muir of Owensdale were in town Monday evening attending the commencement, two members of the family being in the graduating class.

Jud T. Strickler arrived home Monday from a few days spent at his alma mater, Dickinson College, where he attended the opening of the new fraternity house of the Beta Theta Pi, of which he and Frank Porter are two members from Scottdale.

There will be a joint meeting of the citizens and business men and the Volunteer Fire Department on Thursday evening at the borough building at 8 o'clock for the purpose of making arrangements for a parade and fireworks on July 4. The Burgess and Council are also invited to attend and official suggestions from them will be welcomed. The intention is to have a grand Fourth of July celebration. A party of horse dealers and traders who have been camped up above the "r" for several days, left today for Latrobe, where they will stay for a while. While here they gathered up considerable stock.

WANT LEGACY.

Litigation in A. Overholt Estate begun in Westmoreland. GREENSBURG, June 4.—The May term of Orphans' Court began before Judge Steele Monday morning. Ex-Judge Harry White of Indiana county, presented a petition of Mrs. Mary Lonsure and Mrs. Emma T. Khue, in the estate of Abraham Overholt, the wealthy whisky maker, who died over 30 years ago.

This petition asks for the enforcement of an attachment against C. S. Overholt, surviving executor of A. Overholt, to compel him to pay the petitioners the amount of a legacy bequeathed to Mrs. Tinsman, now deceased, the mother of the petitioners.

VOTE CLOSE

For Sheriff in Westmoreland—Winners for Poor Director Armbrust, Wolff and Dixon.

GREENSBURG, June 4.—Estimates made by County Chairman Charles Crowell late last night show that John Shields has a lead of 450 over Ben Steele for Sheriff. Yesterday afternoon the arrival of some new districts spread consternation in the Shields camp, and a general recount was at once ordered. The new count is based on 136 districts, with 35 missing. The vote runs 3,302 for Shields and 2,830 for Steele. The other districts are estimated for Shields by enough to make 450.

For Poor Director J. A. Armbrust, R. D. Wolff and John Dixon are sure winners. Hitchman's big majority has not been estimated. For Registrar of Wills David A. Miller has a lead of 1,300 and is gaining with each new return that comes in.

BYERS WILL VERDICT.

Marion F. Byers Comes Into Possession of $500,000 Fortune.

GREENSBURG, June 4.—The jury in the famous Byers will case met today at 5 o'clock and returned a verdict for the plaintiff, Rev. R. C. Fomer of Scottdale, executor of the will of the late Jacob Byers, and by this decision the will in favor of Marion Frank Byers, legatee, stands. The arguments were heard yesterday and the case given to the jury at 2 o'clock. Judge Doss, in charging the jury, warned them against undue influence, leaving them to decide the case wholly on the mental capacity of the testator. A large sum of money was involved in the case, and an effort was made by objectors to the will to show that Jacob Byers, the rich Mount Pleasant township farmer, was not mentally competent to execute a will and that undue influence had been brought to bear upon him. The case has been in court for the past several years.

Miss Boyd's Funeral. The funeral services of Miss Helen Boyd will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Methodist Church at Conespring. Miss Boyd was shot Saturday at her home by her father, A. L. Boyd, who says it was accidental.

Called to Greensburg. At a congregational meeting held last night and moderated by Rev. Mullen of Scottdale, Rev. W. J. Michaels of Dayton, O., was called to the pastorate of the Greensburg United Presbyterian Church.

MURDERER'S CREAKING TOES FIGURE IN SOMERSET TRIAL.

Physical Peculiarity of John Miller, Charged With Mrs. Katherine Stauffer's Murder, Said to Have Been Noted.

THE GRANDCHILDREN'S STORY.

Will Be Sensational in Trial Which Began at Somerset Yesterday—Aged Woman Was Slain in the Night With Hammer After Children Had Been Chloroformed.

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, June 3.—At 9 o'clock this morning the second murder case for trial at this term of criminal court, that against John H. Miller, a well known farmer of Stonycreek township, who has been in jail here for the past six months, charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Stauffer, at her home near Lambertville, on November 8, last, with a hammer, was opened. The attorneys for the prosecution are District Attorney R. E. Meyers and Percy A. Loe of Johnstown, and the defendant is represented by Berkey & Sawyer and V. R. Saylor.

In selecting a jury to find a verdict in this case considerable time was expended. Three venues were exhausted before a full panel was reported, 47 jurors being called and examined by the counsel. The names of the jury follow: Hiram Beck, farmer, Middlebrook; Ellis Largent, laborer, Addison; G. B. Coleman, farmer, Jenner; N. D. Hay, farmer, Elk Lick; William J. Penn, woodworker, Berlin; M. J. Shank, farmer, Black; John E. Enos, laborer, Rockwood; Nelson Saylor, laborer, Meyersdale; Jacob N. Walter, farmer, Millfort; J. L. Sanner, farmer, Upper Turkeyfoot; Mahlon Bowman, farmer, Somerset township; Cyrus Shultz, laborer, Meyersdale.

It will be remembered that last week as the jury was being selected Attorney J. A. Berkey on the part of the defendant arose and made a motion to prevent Attorney P. A. Rose of Johnstown from participating in the case, alleging that some weeks ago Sheridan Pickens, a son of the deceased Mrs. Katherine Stauffer, had made an information against George W. Walker, charging him with the murder in question before Justice of the Peace W. W. Knable. Attorney Berkey alleged that Attorney Rose and Pickens were in conspiracy to convict Miller of this crime and thus shield Walker, against whom this information had been made.

At 9:30 this morning District Attorney Meyers opened the case on the part of the Commonwealth. In his address to the jury Mr. Meyers stated that great care had been exercised in selecting the jury to try this case because it was one of the highest crime known to the criminal code. He stated that the house in which the murder took place was a large brick house in a rather isolated position, the nearest neighbors living about a fourth of a mile distant. He stated then that on the night of the murder Grace Auman, the fifteen year old grandchild of the murdered woman, was awakened by something being applied to her face. She awoke and, thinking that her 14 year old brother John, had arisen from his sleep, she said, "Johnny, is that you?" A short, heavy-set man, to use her own language, seized her and choked her then ran out of the room and down the back stairs. Grace Auman summoned her brother and they went into their grandmother's room in order to awaken her. This room was filled with the deadly fumes of chloroform, which odor had also permeated the sleeping room of Grace Auman. The children called their grandmother several times and then, believing her to be dead, they ran out of the room, down the stairs and out of the door in the rear of the house. They went towards the barn and stayed there a minute or two and then hastened to the house of William P. Spangler about a fourth of a mile away, to summon aid. As they left the room of their grandmother they heard the sound of foot-steps on the front stairs, and when they concealed themselves behind a door, believing that if they ran away the murderer would catch them, they saw someone enter the room of their grandmother. When they reached Spangler's house they summoned several persons and started back toward their home. The persons in this little party, in addition to the two grandchildren, were William P. Spangler, John Sanner, his son, and Noel Horne, together with several other men. When they arrived they found the lifeless body of Mrs. Stauffer, a large hole being in her head above the right temple. A hammer, taken from a small work shop on the Stauffer farm, was found outside the house and fitting into the wound. The grandchild stated that she could not identify the murderer for the reason that the light of the window, which faced the moon directly, was partially shut off by the head of a high, old-fashioned bed, and the other window in the room faced the north. She stated that the man who came to her and awakened her by his attempts to chloroform her was a short, heavy man wearing a cap. She stated that she could not see his face because it appeared black, probably indicating a mask, and that she did not know him.

There are several significant facts brought out in the cross-examination of Annie Auman, these facts being indicated in the opening of District Attorney Meyers. One of these facts is that the murderer obtained a ladder from an out-house where it was kept and set it up against the side of the house farthest from the sleeping rooms of the two grandchildren and Mrs. Stauffer, these three rooms communicated by doors between them.

These facts seem to indicate that the murderer knew the place where the ladder was kept and also knew the location of the sleeping rooms of the occupants of the house. Also, the hammer with which this crime was perpetrated was obtained from a small workshop on the farm and had been in the shop in its proper place on the day before the murder. In addition, a large yellow watch dog kept on the Stauffer premises to guard the house made no disturbance when the murderer came on the farm, obtained the hammer, ascended the ladder, set it up against the side of the house, and mounting it, lighted a lamp or candle, holding this flame so long a time that the glass in the window was coated with lampblack. This candle protector of the Stauffer household, when the grandchildren came back with their little party of neighbors whom they had summoned, came out and attempted to bite some of the party, making a loud noise.

The next morning there was found outside of the house an empty bottle, bearing the label of Dr. Baker and having written on it with an indelible pencil the words "Chloroform" and "Poison." It is stated that Dr. J. M. Lowther and his clerks here can positively identify this bottle as having been filled at their pharmacy with chloroform a day or two before the commission of the crime, and that these men can identify Miller as the party to whom they sold the liquid. It is stated that Miller claims that he purchased the chloroform for a sick horse.

There have been many legal squabbles between the attorneys in this case. Objections have been frequently and stubbornly argued and demands for offers to show what was to be proven by certain witnesses or certain testimony have been hotly contested. About two hours were spent this morning in the examination and cross-examination of Grace Auman, the grandchild of the murdered woman, and she was on the stand when court adjourned at noon.

Another fact brought out in the opening of District Attorney Meyers was the fact that the man noticed by the grandchildren that when the man who awakened Grace was running down the stairs they could hear the joints of his toes creaking. It is stated that this is a peculiarity of Miller's.

It was also brought out in the testimony that in the will of William Stauffer he divided his estate into six equal parts. Two of these parts were to be given to the two sons by the first wife, three parts to his three daughters by his second wife, the remaining share to his widow, Mrs. Katherine Stauffer. At her death one-sixth share was to be divided between the two grandchildren, John and Grace Auman. It is stated that Miller, the defendant, and Mrs. Stauffer, his mother-in-law, had frequent disagreements and quarrels over this fact, Miller arguing that by all means Mrs. Stauffer's share ought to go to her own daughters after her death.

In this case there have been five persons charged with the murder at different times. Some months ago after Miller had been arrested, Henry Divoly, a farmer of Shade township, whose cupidly had been excited by the offer of a reward of $500, caused the arrest of Harry and Charles Edward Putman and John Switz of Hooversville and Boswell, charging them with the murder of Mrs. Stauffer and basing his charges upon an alleged confession by the wife of Charles Edward Putman. Later information against George T. Walker of Stonycreek township was made by Sheridan Switz of Johnstown, a son of the murdered Mrs. Stauffer.

Dr. C. L. Froelich of Stoyesstown then testified that he had been summoned to the Stauffer home by the Coroner and the Constable and stated that he had made an examination, giving the dimensions of the wound as two inches long, an inch wide and half an inch deep.

John Auman, brother of Grace Auman and a grandchild of Mrs. Stauffer, corroborated his sister's testimony and is on the stand when this report closes.

From Westmoreland's County Seat.

GREENSBURG, June 3.—Slechts for Sheriff, Hitchman for Controller, Miller for Register, Wolfe, Armbrust and Dixon for Poor Directors was the result of unofficial returns gathered at Republican headquarters up until last night. The continuous rain Saturday kept the vote down to 7,000 or 8,000 on the Republican side. Much more than this had been expected. Steele followers claim their man lost much of the independent vote through the rainy weather. Although the vote over the county was light, returns were slow in coming in, owing to the immensity of detail required by the new Uniform Primaries Act.

It became apparent early Saturday night that Hitchman would win in a walk and that Miller would lead his opponents. The struggle for Sheriff, however, kept see-sawing all evening. Sometimes Slechts would boom strong, and again Steele would take the lead. At one time Stevens looked dangerous, but soon faded away. For Poor Director Wolfe was strongly in evidence in all the returns, with Armbrust and Dixon chasing close. No totals were kept of the Democratic, Prohibition or Socialist vote.

Eighty-three districts out of a total of 171 gave Slechts a lead over Steele of 366, Slechts getting over 2,800 and Steele over 2,200. The returns show Slechts first, Steele second, with Meerhoff Stevens and Walker fighting for third place. Slechts carried Greensburg, Greater Greensburg, Scottdale, Mount Pleasant and New Kensington, Arnold and other precincts. Steele won out in Irwin, Latrobe, Youngwood and some of the smaller districts. The primaries passed off quietly. No reports of disorder were heard at any point. At Arnold, no extra officers were sworn in, but there was no semblance of disturbance.

Glen Patterson, the late son of S. G. Patterson of Crabtree, met with a painful and perhaps fatal accident Sunday afternoon. The lad, who is five years old, found a shot gun which had been loaded for crows. He and some playmates began playing soldier, when the gun was discharged. The heavy load tore off the little fellow's leg at the knee, and took two fingers off his left hand. Drs. Offutt and Cope drove out to perform an amputation.

A TRIP TO THE MOON.

A Rare Musical Treat to Be Presented at Colonial Theatre Thursday and Friday, June 6 and 7.

The "Trip to the Moon," which will be given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest. There will be about 350 persons in the cast, and its beautiful costumes, scenery and electrical effects will surpass anything ever presented in this city.

This production was the one staged so elaborately at Harrisburg, where it was given as a special act on the evening of Governor Pennypacker's inauguration January 23. The merits of this grand spectacular play were all underlined by Harrisburg people, two performances having been given earlier in the season with great success, and upon the occasion of the return date they demonstrated their interest by packing the house, it being impossible to get standing room.

The music is catchy. The plot is funny and is laid at the North Pole. The beautiful costumes, many situations and electrical effects all add to the attractiveness of the play. Seats are now on sale at Hirston's drug store.

WILL AVOID SCANDAL

New Board of Public Grounds and Buildings Becomes Active.

Harrisburg, June 4.—Bids for the supplies of the state government for the fiscal year ending the first Tuesday of June, 1908, will be opened today by the board of public grounds and buildings, composed of the governor, auditor general and state treasurer. The substance upon which the bids will be received has been arranged so as to avoid a scandal similar to that which has grown out of the contracts for furnishing and equipping the new capital.

The investigation commission has had to have secured evidence showing that there were gross overcharges and irregularities in the contracts awarded upon the regular schedules issued prior to the letting of the special capital contracts. It is claimed that the auditors have discovered that thousands of dollars were paid by the state for furniture and other supplies which were never delivered by the contractors. It is also said that one of these contractors have made overtures to the commission to return a portion of the money he collected from the state. The report of the auditors is ready to deliver to the commission, but it has not yet been determined by the investigators when it shall be made public. Until the commission makes its final report to Governor Stuart it is doubtful if Attorney General Todd will institute criminal or civil proceedings against those who figure in the scandal. The commission will resume its public hearings at 11 o'clock on Thursday morning.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 4.—The situation in the four strikes, carpenters, plumbers, telephone linemen and teamsters now in progress here, is apparently unchanged. The federal injunction secured Friday against the telephone linemen has gone into effect. The injunction is the most sweeping ever issued in this state. The strikers are not only restrained from acts of coercion, intimidation and violence, but are prohibited from boycotting and from aiding the telephone operator in forming a union for sympathetic strikes.

"The murderer of Captain Blaydes?"

"No."

"Who then?"

"His reputed murderer. He is an innocent man. You know I thought so at the time. You know, I believe, how

I backed my opinion to the tune of several hundreds? I'm backing it still.

Lucky Starke; I'm backing it still—that's all." It was not all. He went on to tell all Erichsen had gone through,

his knowledge, in the settlement; how he was trying in his small way to make up to the poor fellow for the shocking injustice of his fate, and yet

how even now the unlucky wretch

went in danger of his neck, as Lady

Starke had seen for herself, and all for siding with some bushrangers in circumstances of extraordinary compulsion and provocation combined.

Of all this James Daintree spoke so feelingly and with such an obviously earnest purpose that Lady Starke was quite moved and undertook to use her influence with Claire in the matter of the convict servants.

But it was of no avail.

Daintree drove the ladies into Syd-ter's arm ran affectionately through that of the man.

"My dear fellow," he said, "it

grieves me more than I can say, but I cannot go against my young wife

where there is apparent right upon her side. She will have no convicts in her house. You and I will be compelled to part."

"It was bound to come," was Tom's reply. "I am only thankful it didn't come before you gave me back a little of what I have lost. I shall be grateful to you till my dying hour."

"Oh, but I've not done with you yet.

I must have you out of this country

by hook or crook—that I'm bent upon.

That brute Sullivan is actually at the Fultney. It seems his overseer never meant to spit on you for some reason,

but he did so when drunk, and now the other holds him to it. Until we split you out of the country you'll never be safe."

"That doesn't matter," said Tom. "I would rather stay where I am and take my chance."

He was thinking of Daintree and his wife. Even through his gratitude

he was thinking of that darker side.

CHAPTER XXXI.

THAT was a long week at the bungalow. It was to culminate at St. Philip's church in Sydney on the Saturday morning. The license was bought. The bridegroom carried the ring in his pocket. Everything was ready but a best man. And here another peculiarity stood out. There was no best man to be had. As in London so in New South Wales. This baronet's son and heir, this man of blood and means and literary fame, was unbelieved in spite of all. Claire and her aunt had been absolutely the only guests at the bungalow in all Tom's time there. Nor was it because Daintree had never made a friend in the settlement. It was because he had never kept one in any quarter of the globe.

Meanwhile the ladies came to Rose bay no more. The happy man went to them instead and would stop till midnight, to gallop home by starlight and pour out his happiness to Tom and the harbor turned from jet to polished steel, and twice the steel was silver, and once the silver was flaming gold before the poet would hold his peace. It was a long week, but the nights went quicker than the days. Daintree had never been a better companion than in those long, confidential, starlit talks. They were not exclusively on the one subject. Tom learned at last how the murder had affected the party at Avenue Lodge, and one whole night and day he never closed an eye for thinking of two men in two new surroundings. They were the living man Harding and the dead man Blaydes. The first haunted Tom the longer. Why had he insisted on dragging Daintree to the trial?

The days were lengthened by Peggy in the kitchen, with her kind, uninjured looks and the unfeeling, friendly, available word that made him feel the meanest of men. The girl could be an angel when she had him, with all his coldness, to herself. He never suspected what she had been from the Sunday night to the Monday afternoon. And now they were both under notice to leave.

"If only you two would make up your minds to marry!" said Daintree to Tom. "I have you both on my mind, but I could provide for the two of you at one stroke as a married couple. It has long been my wish to start a model farm up country, and you and Peggy would certainly make model managers." But Tom shook his head more decidedly than he had shaken it while the little Rosamund was pricking her way across the chart.

On the Friday, the same breeze holding good all the week, Daintree decided to sail round to Sydney instead of driving. He had a solid check to cash for the wedding trip, and the Point Piper road was no route for a pocketful of money and a life at its very highest value. Tom asked if Nat Sullivan was still in Sydney and was told that he had drunk himself prostrate at the Fultney, whereupon Tom volunteered on the fringe of the crowd, without a clear thought in her head, but in her hand a packet that had fallen at her feet when Tom's shirt and vest were torn off and buried aside. The packet was sewed up in dripping oiled silk as transparent as glass. Through it she could read a name she but dimly realized to be her own, and the voices of those jostling her seemed far away. "He is alive," said Daintree, looking up. "Has nobody run for brandy?" Nobody had.

Daintree was saving the air with the drenched white arms.

And it was wanted now for two people.

Claire Harding had swooned away. Daintree had his hands full with the both conscious and able to drive away with him in a hired chaise. They drove to the hotel, forgetting the risk. On the way Tom stretched forth a feeble hand.

"How many more times are you going to save my life?" he asked.

"You saved mine, too," said Claire sadly.

"It was nervous work after the way my poor wee dog went," said Daintree.

"Did you see that, Claire? Poor thing! It was a shock!"

"Yes," she shuddered.

"But if he will but splash a bit, your man of courage is all right. Do you mind if we drive round by the Herald office? They publish on Monday, but it's just as well to be in time."

So the conceit of him overlapped even his heroism. And Claire and Tom sat shivering in their wet clothes, while Daintree in his was several minutes inspiring and all but dictating the paragraph which duly appeared in the Sydney Herald. But during those minutes the pair in the chaise never exchanged a word, and afterward, in the hotel, not one word.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Daintree was driven home before dusk, for his pocketbook was blank with moist bank notes, besides which Lady Starke positively refused to have him about the hotel that evening. It was against the rules for bridegrooms as laid down by her ladyship, who dined very solemnly with her place alone and got to bed at a reasonable hour for the first time that week. Claire then had her sitting room to herself, and the glow of the oiled silk packet which had fallen into her hands that afternoon. It was this and a long, long letter she plainly contained. Under the lamp Claire's name and the address of her old home were still legible beneath the silk, though they no longer stood out as when the skin was wet. And on the reverse side was written very small, "For pity's sake, forward this!"

When? After his death? Fate had forwarded it before. Should she read or destroy or return this letter to its writer to the original who had confessed to her his crime? Some minutes after Claire Harding asked herself this question she turned up the lamp and cut the oiled silk open with a pair of scissors. She now saw that the letter had been written some time, yet it was with a strange thrill, a wonderment beguiling at the heart, that she read the heading within. It was Newgate and the date May 29, 1837, the blackest day of all her life, the eve of that on which they would have hanged him.

Agitated as she was, however, by these dreadful memories and touched by the mere fact of his having written to her on that awful Monday, it was the first sentence of his letter that ran into her heart like molten lead. He called himself an innocent man! From the brink of the guillotine that he, that blasphemy which he had lived to confess to her with his crime! She read on mechanically, and all at once her pain ceased. She was lost and absorbed in the plain, straightforward, circumstantial story into which he plunged without preliminary. He told her everything from the moment they parted at the garden gate. Nothing was left out, nothing extenuated, nothing enlarged or even commented upon by the writer. The heart was beating wildly long before she reached the end of this plain statement. She had forgotten all about her confession. This was the truth, this was the truth.

"Sweetheart, I want you to—"

"I must call you so once more—I cannot tell you how I feel, for I vary from hour to hour. Now and then I feel the murderer they say I am, now and then an abject coward without the pick to show it, now and then a sort of Christian martyr. But with God's help I hope to finish up a man. Do not grieve for the only way of it. There is no disgrace in that since it is the mistake, and if there is in what I fear but he will make it up to me one day. Oh, but it is sweet to talk to you again! I used to tell you everything, and so I must until the end.

"The tunkies are looking through my grating now. They are telling each other what I am at and coming back and back again to have a peep. My Christianity isn't proof against that. I say nothing, but I could do the thing I am going to do for—God help me, I may do it yet! You see how I change. There is only one thing in which I never change—my grateful love and reverence for the great girl who gave me and would have given me another chance if this had not happened. Sweetheart, my love for you has grown in prison; it has been my only comfort in this vile place, and it will go with me where I go tomorrow. It will stay with my poor soul through all eternity. Only do not grieve for me, Claire, for I never was worthy of your sweet love. I would not leave this behind for you, I would not have you reminded of me for a single day, but for one selfish thing. Sweetheart, it is to make you believe in me. You have not done so yet. Why should you? Nobody knows what you know and have so nobly hidden, but, for all I said to you, I am innocent. He was alive when I left him! I did give him the receipt, and we shook hands at the end. That is God's truth. I tell you with the last words my hand will ever write. I mean to write to the kind family who paid for my defense and is working still they tell me for a reward, but now I can not. If you could find him out and thank him for me, I should be grateful, but my last words in this life must be to you. God bless you, dear, and give you somebody much better than I ever could have been. Only do know that I never did this thing, and when you realize that think no more of me, my dear love, but pray tomorrow for the soul of your unworthy boy."

His signature followed, better written than the rest a touching effort to "finish up a man." All the last pages

IN MEMORY OF "JEFF"

Women of the South Unveil Monument to Memory of South's President.

W. J. BRYAN GIVEN OVATION

But Fearing a Political Move Would Be Attributed to His Presence the Nebraskan Kept in the Background. No Politics Wanted.

Richmond, Va., June 4.—Under a perfect sky with bands playing "Dixie" and "Maryland," the remnants of the Armies of the Gray passed through the streets of Richmond and out on splendid Monument avenue, unveiling an enduring memorial to Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Confederate states of America. The event came as a climax of the reunion of the United Confederate Veterans and every member of the body of officers who was able to walk at all took part.

Second only to the tribute given by the speakers to the memory of Dixie Land's great chief, the women of the south whose gift the monument is. The speeches counseled the teaching of loyalty to the cause for which the southern states struggled, but there was nothing in the teachings but what excited the sympathy and approval of visitors from the other section.

Gathered for One Purpose Only.

That the multitude had gathered for one purpose alone was evidenced by the attitude of the people toward William J. Bryan, who was the guest of the reunion. He was given a remarkable ovation as he drove through the streets in the line of march and cheered to the echo as he mounted the stand just before the program was begun. At the conclusion of the ceremony there were a number of calls for him to address the people, but these were immediately drowned in a chorus of "No, No, No," many times repeated. The objections came from everywhere and were led by the women of the Jefferson Davis Memorial association, also General Stephen D. Lee, grand commander, who presided at the stand and announced in ringing tones: "There will be no politics here."

He turned to the crowd in every direction and shouted the warning and it had the desired effect.

During the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bryan had occupied an inconspicuous position in the rear of the speaker's stand. As soon as his name was called Mr. Bryan made a movement as though to withdraw from the stand. He realized that if he appeared before the people a political move would be attributed to him by many and for that reason he had opposed going on the stand at all. The prompt suppression of the calls by General Lee and others saved an embarrassing situation.

One of the touching incidents of the day was the presentation of the descendants of Mr. Davis to the great throng, which cheered the small sons. Roanoke, Va., June 4.—There was a suspension of business over the entire system of the Norfolk & Western railway for five minutes while the veil was being withdrawn from the monument erected to the memory of Jefferson Davis at Richmond.

PLEDGE SUPPORT TO KNOX

Pennsylvania Politicians Ready to Advance His Candidacy. Harrisburg, June 4.—State Chairman Andrews has arrived here from Philadelphia to take charge of the details of Thursday's Republican convention for the nomination of a candidate for state treasurer to succeed William H. Berry, Democrat, whose term expires next May. United States Senator Penrose will come to Harrisburg today for a conference with his lieutenants at which a candidate will be selected. The indications are that there will be no organized opposition to the convention to the candidate elected by the conference. It is thought the nomination will go to Western Pennsylvania and that ex-State Senator Henry H. Cummings of Warren county is the most likely aspirant. Cummings is a veteran of the Civil war and Chairman Andrews says his selection would be satisfactory to the old soldiers.

The convention will probably induct United States Senator Knox for the nomination for President and pledge him the support of the Pennsylvania delegation. The senator will remain away from Harrisburg during the convention, but his friend, Congressman James Francis Burke, of Pittsburg, will be here to open headquarters for the senator and look after his interests. George T. Oliver of Pittsburg may be chairman of the convention, which will convene at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning.

WARMER WEATHER COMING

Official Forecasters Hold Out Many Hopes of Fine Weather.

Washington, June 4.—The weather bureau reports that while the mercury has soared considerably in the last 24 hours generally east of the Mississippi, except in New England, the temperature is still much below normal in the west gulf states. A fall of 10 to 20 degrees has occurred in the middle Mississippi valley and the plain states.

The official forecasters prophesy warmer weather today in the lower lake region and Atlantic coast states north of the Carolinas, but cooler out in Missouri and thence southwestward to northern Texas.

The temperature Wednesday will not change materially except in the middle gulf states, where it will be cooler. In the northwest the temperature will rise. The bureau looks for genuine summer weather in many sections by the end of the week.

SOCIAL UNION

Of the First Baptist Church Held on Sunday Evening at Home of Mrs. W. H. Showman.

The regular monthly meeting of the Social Union of the First Baptist church was held Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Showman, on the corner of Prospect street and Fairview avenue. The attendance was one of the best in the history of the Union. It was a James Whitcomb Riley evening. The biographical sketch, written by Mrs. J. M. Scott, was an interesting paper and was greatly enjoyed. The entire literary program was an enjoyable one. Among the special numbers were songs by the Excelsior Octette and vocal solos by Prof. and Mrs. A. B. Morton.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Robinson, near Robinson's Falls, Dunbar township, on Tuesday evening, July 2, and will be a basket picnic. Remember the date and come along. You will meet a royal welcome.

REPRISALS

Threatened in Spain if Anarchists' Trials Are Not Called Off.

MADRID, June 4.—[Special.]—Threats of reprisals have been made by the anarchists unless the trial of the anarchists is called off. The anarchists in an attempt to assassinate King Alfonso and Queen Victoria on their wedding day are acquitted. Their trials, which commenced Monday, have greatly alarmed the city, and this morning huge placards were found posted in many places warning the government against further outbreaks if the alleged conspirators are condemned.

The placards were removed by the police but their appearance gave the city a great shock. It is feared that an attempt will be made to blow up the building in which the trials are being held or that an attack will be made upon the ministers. Evidence so far produced has seemingly convinced Prof. Forer with the anarchists and terrorist organizations although he denied any connection with Morral or knowledge of Morral's plans.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the approval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading drug stores throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.
